"Ah Malbec, beautiful fruity opulent Malbec. An underrated linchpin for many outstanding Aussie red wines but which often strikes a blow for the underdog. In fact, more winemakers are finally using Malbec as a straight varietal, and not before time. I have always liked this Malbec, which is sourced from South Australia's Langhorne Creek, where the combination of climate, soils and regionality seem so suited to the highly drinkable nature of the variety. There's a really engaging perfumed blue fruit character here that reveals on the nose. This plus a juicy palate screams Malbec, before delivering with a soft and supple pure expression of fruit."

"Zonte's Footstep gained its name in a very quirky way. It refers to the zante currant, which is thought to have been the first grape variety planted in the colony of South Australia. The 'a' was changed to an 'o' because it's forbidden to use a grape name on a wine label unless that grape is in the wine."

The colour is a deep, dense purple/red, the rich perfumes of violets and floral nuances, combined with black fruits and a tinge of dark chocolate. The intense middle palate is full-bodied yet has a degree of elegance, the tannins fine and tight and firm, underlined by acidity. Well balanced for drinking early, and will age well."
